The Pioneer Settler upon the Holland Purchase and his Progress

Through the deep wilderness, where scarce the sun
Can cast his darts, along the winding path
The Pioneer is treading. In his grasp
Is his keen axe, that wondrous instrument,
That, like the talisman, transforms
Deserts to fields and cities. He has left
The home, in which his early years were passed,
And, led by hope, and full of restless strength,
Has plunged within the forest, there to plant
His destiny. Beside some rapid stream
He rears his log-built cabin. When the chains
Of Winter fetter Nature, and no sound
Disturbs the echoes of the dreary woods,
Save when some stem cracks sharply with the frost;
Then merrily rings his axe, and tree on tree
Crash to earth; and when the long keen night
Mantles the wilderness in solemn gloom,
He sits beside his ruddy hearth, and hears
The fierce wolf snarling at the cabin door,
Or through the lowly casement sees his eye
Gleam like a burning coal.

—by Alfred B. Street.

Town of Tonawanda

THOSE who know the Town of Tonawanda today find it bewildering to go back 300 years, before the coming of the White Man, to the time when it was an unbroken forest, a snarl of underbrush, hazardous with dark swampland. Except for a large variety of wild animals and a few Indians, dense woodland right to the banks of the swift Niagara, held unrestrained possession of an area which now contains an airplane field, industries which are the amazing products of scientific research, modern homes of charm and beauty; an amazing and bewildering transition.

The charm of the forest primeval was first broken in 1679 with the arrival of La Salle and his companions in their exploration and ill-fated empire-building push to the westward. French missionaries penetrated the country with them, zealously urged their faith upon the Indians under disheartening circumstances. And then they passed temporarily from the picture.

In the earliest days of the white men, they found the Neuter and the Erie Indian tribes inhabiting this part of the country, comparatively peaceful peoples.

Brave La Salle, once passed the roaring Niagara and bent on further trade and exploration, built the "Griffon" near and perhaps on Tonawanda shores for trade and exploration on the Upper Lakes. La Salle pushed West with a portion of his party while the rest collected a cargo of furs from the Indians. After months he returned to a rendezvous with the "Griffon" party but that group and the boat never returned and their fate is today a mystery. Discouraged, La Salle turned back towards the Mississippi. But he himself was murdered and the location of his bones today is still unknown.

This incident is only mentioned because the loss of the "Griffon" and the death of La Salle no doubt had the effect of retarding the development of the Niagara Frontier and the Town of Tonawanda by many years. But, gradually, the white men penetrated. The English contested the ground with the French and finally won. Then came the American Revolution and loss of control of the Niagara Frontier by the English, although they did not give up Fort Niagara until 1796.

Forty years later when there was further penetration by the French, explorers found that the Iroquois Confederacy had wiped out the Neuters and Eries. For a few brief years the forest here was deserted except for occasional hunting parties and Indians following the canoe carry trail around Niagara Falls.

The nature of the terrain was such, primitive water travellers here had to take to the land. The banks of the Niagara in the Town of Tonadanda became a high road not only for Indians but explorers, missionaries, soldiers, traders, and, down through the years, all those who served commerce and trade.

But as soon as the American colonies were free, settlers began slowly to come into the Tonawanda country. Robert Morris, the Philadelphia patriot, in 1797, sold his huge tract of land in western New York to the Holland Land Company and Joseph Ellicott, surveyor and special agent, and Theophilus Cazenove, first general agent of the Holland Land Company, began their promotion of this area.

But early development was slow. Nearly 150 years had elapsed from the time the first white men set eyes on the Tonawanda country until the first township in 1801 was organized including this area. The organization meeting took place at Vandeventer's Tavern at Newstead, about halfway to Batavia. The total vote for supervisor was 144 and it was determined that there were only 9 absent voters in all this area; that is, from Batavia to the Niagara.

But Ellicott laid out Buffalo, surveyed the lands, planned roads, and eastern colonists, ever land-hungry, were attracted in ever-increasing numbers. Buffalo was a thriving village and there were already a few settlers hewing homes for themselves in the forest of the Town of Tonawanda. The famous Military Road had already been cut in a straight line through the woods as an essential means of communication between the villages of Buffalo and Black Rock with Fort Niagara, and the shortest route to the military post.

Then came the War of 1812. Death spat across the border river. A hush and a hesitancy fell upon the Frontier communities. The White people were justifiably apprehensive in the face of an amazing tragedy of military errors which reached their peak in the burning desolation of Buffalo and Tonawanda villages and the utter abandonment of the Frontier communities. In all these difficult days the name of but one leader stands out above the rest, Gen. Peter Porter.

In the spring of 1814, after a winter of horror and deprivation, the Frontier communities began to struggle out of the wreckage. A slow-moving legislature

But, oddly enough, up to thirty years ago, the area in the Town of Tonawanda remained almost purely agricultural. Pioneer settlers gradually pushed the wilderness back, made homes for themselves. These were years of struggle and desperate encountrs with Nature. The year 1817 is remembered as one of famine so bitter that wheat kernels were taken off the growing stems as soon as they had formed, cooked and eaten by the hungry inhabitants. The woods were searched for game and the streams for fish. Berries and herb roots were all too often the only food.

In 1836, on April 16th, a handful of men formed the township of Tonawanda. A group of Germans had founded in 1830 a tiny religious organization which several years later, became the Knoche Road Evangelical Church, and in 1836 Father Neumann, a Roman Catholic priest, built his North Bush Chapel, now known as the church of St. John, the Baptist.

Through the days of the Mexican War and even the Civil War the township continued to be a rather quiet farming community. There was some active recruiting for the Civil War at Birdwhistle's Saloon on Delaware Road, nearly opposite Highland Avenue and much bitterness on the part of parents when their sons marched away to war.

It was not really until the turn of the century and even later that the complexion of the township began to change from that of a prosperous farming community to that of a rapidly advancing urban community, with a large portion of important industries and an unexcelled residential community, virtually the keystone in the arch of Niagara Frontier's collection of communities.

Even in 1910, the total population of the township was only 2,175. But during the next ten years it more than doubled to 5,505. Then came the great advance from 1920 to 1930 ending with a total population of 25,006. The population today is approximately 30,000.

far east in Albany was finally aroused to vote a grant of $40,000 to aid in the reconstruction of their destructed communities days away on the frontier. Adequate military protection was at last given. The Frontier arose from its ashes and shortly settlements began to grow with renewed vigor.

Perhaps the greatest single force in the stimulation of Frontier development was the construction of the Erie Canal. It first brought workers and then settlers and, forthwith, travelers going into the farther western points. Buffalo grew swiftly.

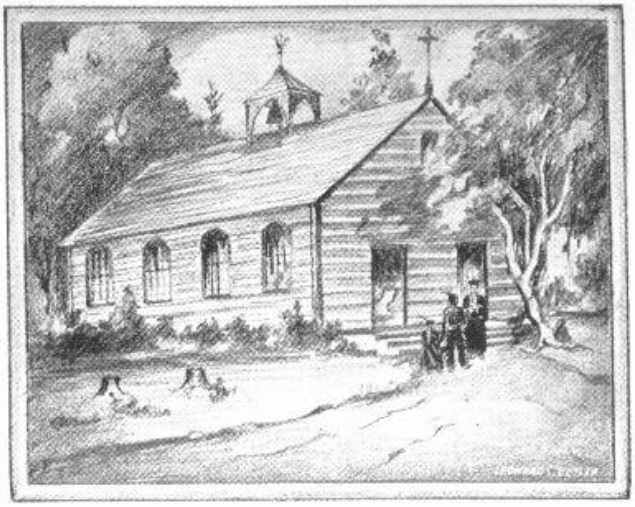
1836-1936 Town Centennial Program

Along with an increase in population the prosperous community must show a like increase in property values and the Town of Tonawanda has exceeded anything which anyone might expect in that particular. In fact it has doubtless exceeded the fondest dreams in that respect of Louis P. A. Eberhardt, who has perhaps done more than any other one man over the years to develop the community.

Propery valuation increased from $5,248,531.00 in 1915 to $75,571,360.00 in 1936.

The opening of the Town of Tonawanda Centennial marks the beginning of the second hundred years which will doubtless be even more fruitful than the first hundred years. The situation of the township is such that it still has tremendous possibilities of growth, can dwarf its present growth before it reaches the limit of its capacity since it has so many outstanding advantages which make it attractive both to industry and to the home seeker.



The first North Bush Chapel was erected by Father John N. Neumann, in 1836. The first structure was of logs. The present church was erected in 1850.

Buffalo's Warmest Greetings

And to the Centennial

BUFFALO heartily welcomes the Town of Tonawanda to the distinguished Society of Centenarians . . . welcomes it as another lusty commonwealth, one hundred years young, nurtured to maturity in the magnificent Niagara Frontier which has played so important a part in the history of New York State as well as in the wonderfully romantic history of America. A great American wrote, "an institution is but the lengthened shadow of the man behind it." So, too, it may truly be said, the Town of Tonawanda is but the reflection of those hardy pioneers whose courage, fortitude and industry carved it out of the primeval forest and, by their splendid example, pointed out to those who followed the vast possibilities behind their dreams of the future of this part of what was to become for future generations the great Empire State.

To the Town of Tonawanda

Exposition of Progress

THE Town of Tonawanda looks back upon an honorable past . . . with its triumphs in industry, in commerce, in beautiful homes, in a contented people. It likewise can look forward to a glorious future, so ideally is it situated for growth and expansion, so favored by Nature for carrying on the unquenchable flame of the American spirit. The Land of the Iroquois has become the Land of Opportunity for hundreds of thousands . . . whom it invites to health, hapiness and prosperity. Buffalo is tremendously proud to be your neighbor, Town of Tonawanda . . . rejoices in your success . . . sympathizes with you in your disappointments . . . shares with you in your aspirations . . . highly prizes the cordial relations that have so long existed between us . . . and fondly cherishes the hope that our friendship and will-to-serve each other may ever grow stronger.

100 Years of Progress

WE congratulate the Town of Tonawanda, not so much for its century of life as for the fine progress and high type development achieved during its five score years. And we especially commend the public officials, merchants and residents now living here who during the past 25 years have been personally responsible for the major portion of this progress.

Little-man

here's to your good health

Guard against tainted food with an electric refrigerator

He's worth a million dollars. Don't risk his health for a few cents a day. Take no chances with tainted food this summer . . . get an electric refrigerator.

Suppose your family spends $500 a year on food, and your refrigerator is on its last legs—not modern and dependable. Chances are that the left-overs you have to throw away would soon pay for an electric refrigerator. And just ask anybody who has one how much you save by getting a whole week's supply of meats and vegetables at one time!

Costs just a few cents a day to run at today's low electric rates. Visit your refrigerator dealer next time you're shopping.

When Governor Marcy approved the act of the legislature erecting the Town of Tonawanda, Andrew Jackson was President of the United States, and Millard Fillmore was a candidate for election to Congress, from this district.

Day laborers were glad to work for two shillings a day; and beef, pork, salt fish, potatoes and hominy were the staple, year around diet. Every gentleman wore a queue and powdered his hair, but leather breeches, a checked shirt, a red flannel jacket and a cocked hat constituted the dress of the common citizen.

The first railroad was only six years old. The Erie Canal was the popular means of transportation. Tonawanda roads were impassable most of the year.

Benjamin Rathbun, proprietor of the Eagle Hotel and a land speculator of the wildest type, was the great man of Buffalo. Property values had soared and a real estate boom was at its height.

In June of 1836 the slump started. Conditions steadily grew worse. Then came the "Hard Times" of 1837, a year in which "failure, bankruptcy, and disaster, were the order of the day. * * * Fortunes disappeared almost in a night. * * * Banks failed everywhere and the wretched paper money of the country, became more worthless than ever before."

Prosperity returned, however. There were periods of good times; spells of depressions. The struggles of the early settlers eventually were to be crowned with undreamed-of success.

OMMITTEE

1936

A century has passed. Long ago the forest gave way to the farmer and his plow, and he, in turn, to the ever advancing wave of residential and industrial development.

Fast freight trains and huge lake boats now bring to our industries raw materials from the corners of the earth and carry away the finished products. Along the roads built for the movement of troops, thousands of persons now travel to and from their places of employment. Overhead the roar of the air-mail plane goes unnoticed. The tempo of life has been stepped up.

As a community of home-owners, the Town has advanced even more rapidly. Kenmore, Riverside, Kenilworth, Ellwood, Brighton and Sheridan Park offer every advantage and the phenomenal growth of the past decade continues unabated.

Born in the hard times of a century ago and hardened to adversity in its youth, the Town has survived the depression with undiminished vigor. Few areas in the entire country can equal the record of growth made by the Town in the past seven years.

A community of youth, of home-owners, of home lovers, of people who are grateful for the opportunities here afforded for "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," is the Town of Tonawanda.

Appreciative of the advantages here provided and confident of the future, a united citizenry pay tribute to the Town of Tonawanda, — an Area of Opportunity, "The Keystone of the Niagara Frontier."

RAYMOND W. ARNOLD
Chairman

The Centennial Committee, Inc.

Presents

"SWIFT WATER"

An Historical Pageant of the Town of Tonawanda, Erie County, N. Y.

Arranged and Staged by The John B. Rogers Producing Company, Fostoria, Ohio.

MRS. P. D. FAHNESTOCK
Co-Chairman

Pageant Master . . . . . W. RAY BOOTH
Continuity and Pageant Outline . LLOYD GRAHAM
Rehearsal Accompanist . MRS. LAWRENCE D. LOCKIE
Narrator . . . . . STUART METZ
Director of Music . . . . . RANSOM HALL
Committee . . . . . REV. JOHN DEMPSEY
MRS. PAUL WILSON

(The name "Tonawanda" is an Indian name and was spelled "Ta-na-wun-da." It means Swift Water.)

EPISODE I.
THE BEGINNING

Upon the scene, from all sides graceful figures appear and to the rhythm of soft music dance joyously—the Sky, the Land and the Flowers, with the Spirits of Creation.

EPISODE II.
THE INDIANS

When explorers first set foot on the shores of this land of ours, they found a strange race of men, about whose origin they were able to learn little.

SCENE—(a) Squaws go about the chores, hoeing and keeping fires burning. Children are at noisy play.

SCENE—(b) We depict the arrival of the French explorers LaSalle, Hennepin, and Tonto, with a group of French soldiers and priests. LaSalle claims the land for France, while the priests offer thanks for their safe journey. A cross is planted while the Indians watch.

EPISODE III.
COMING OF THE EARLY SETTLERS

From history we are able to learn little about the early settlers who decided on the site which is now the Town of Tonawanda, for their home. However, we do know in 1805 Alexander Logan, John King and John Hershey settled in the northeast part of town; and Henry Anguish settled near the old Tonawanda burying ground in 1808. He built the first tavern in that section and strange as it may seem Henry Anguish was not only a tavern keeper but used to assist the Reverend Glezen Fillmore, a noted pioneer Methodist preacher in Erie County. Anguish was known as an "exhorter" in the church. In 1810 Robert Simpson settled near the northeast part of the present site of the Town of Tonawanda. Military Road and a path along the Niagara River were then the only roads into Buffalo.

SCENE—(a) Depicting the arrival of early settlers.

SCENE—(b) The interior of a typical pioneer home, showing the family busily engaged and the arrival of a group of their neighbors and the Circuit Rider to hold one

SCENE—We depict an early school session at the little log cabin school where the school master had his troubles with village boys and often wields the "hickory stick."

EPISODE VI.
THE ELLICOTT-RED JACKET INCIDENT

History tells us of an incident concerning Joseph Ellicott, an early settler, and Red Jacket, an Indian Chieftain. It appears that Red Jacket invited Ellicott to sit down on a log with him. After they were seated, Red Jacket continued to move towards Ellicott until he had forced him to the end of the log and it was impossible for Ellicott to move further without falling off. Red Jacket used this method to show Ellicott, who was a surveyor and land agent, what was happening to the Indian.

SCENE—(a) Tableau of Joseph Ellicott and Red Jacket.

SCENE—(b) In this scene we depict the attack and burning of a Blockhouse in 1812.

EPISODE VII.
POLITICAL CAMPAIGN OF 1840

Politics in 1840 as in 1936 played an important part in the lives of the citizens.

SCENE—A political rally of the General Harrison "log cabin and hard cider" type with torchlight and campaign orator of the day.

EPISODE VIII.
THE VANDEVENTER ELECTION

In March, 1803, an election was held at Vandeventer's tavern to elect a supervisor. We are told that the two candidates Peter Vandeventer and Jotham Bemis, accompanied by Enos Kellog, commissioner, decided on a speech to the citizens telling them of the merits of both men and asked them to vote for their favorite. They were to signify their vote by lining up beside the man they favored. After some confusion seventy lined up with Bemis and seventy-four with Vandeventer.

SCENE—We depict this unusual election.

EPISODE IX.
THE WARS

During the Civil War the old saloon on Delaware Road opposite Englewood Road, kept by a man with the tuneful name of Birdwhistle, served as a recruiting station. The Stars and Stripes waved from the flagpole. Here young men, sometimes secretly, signed up for the Union Army.

After the Civil War came years of Peace. However, of their monthly prayer meeting services.

EPISODE IV.

AN EARLY WEDDING

SCENE: In this episode we depict a wedding with much gaiety on the part of the bridal party, and followed by the hurried parting as the carriage carries away the two principals of the evening.

EPISODE V.

EARLY SCHOOLS

The Town of Tonawanda with its many modern school buildings ranks second to none with its educational advantages, quite a contrast indeed, with the early log cabin school where only the essential three R's were taught.

well into the new century, Mars again demanded human sacrifices, and our country entered the greatest, the most bitter, of all wars—The World War.

SCENE—(a) Recruiting station at Birdwhistle saloon and the Boys in Blue.

SCENE—(b) We portray the horror of the battle field and its tremendous toll of human life, in a tableau expressing the ever-growing confidence that there will be understanding and goodwill among all nations.

EPISODE X

THE WHEEL OF LIFE

From all over the world, by land and sea, people have come to this country where race does not matter. This epoch presents representatives of all nations, in their native costume, forming the great Wheel of Life.
